

Stacy Rodriguez-Rennard, MS

Stacy Rodriguez-Rennard is the Boston Area Rape Crisis Center's Adolescent Clinician. She is a 1994 alumna of Emerson College, Boston, MA, where she earned a Bachelor of Science in Mass Communication, and a 2006 graduate of the University of Massachusetts/Boston's School of Education and Counseling Psychology with a Masters of Science in Mental Health Counseling.

Currently, Ms. Rodriguez-Rennard works as a clinician and advocate creating awareness concerning issues relating to sexual violence. Specifically providing both educational instruction and short-term therapy to adolescent aged survivors of sexual violence. In addition, Ms. Rodriguez-Rennard is also involved in community outreach programs leading therapeutic, psycho-educational and information groups for adolescents in conjunction with various youth serving organizations.

Prior to joining the Boston Area Rape Crisis Center, she was a community advocate volunteer with the Department of Social Services' Foster Care Review Board, and worked to protect the rights of children in the foster care system.