

Related Articles

School Discipline Techniques and Positive Behavior Supports

This series of articles from the Council for Exceptional Children's Online Journal offers information and guides on effective discipline and social skill techniques. One strategy explored is positive behavioral support. Positive behavior supports can help prevent discipline problems, minimize students' resistance to academic instruction, and can be used without disrupting classroom routines. Other articles focus on topics such as mentoring and family involvement inside and outside of the classroom. Read about these and other effective techniques in the Sept./Oct. issue of TEACHING Exceptional Children (TEC).

To view these articles, visit: http://journals.sped.org/index.cfm?fuseaction=tec\_toc

Family Centered Practices in Positive Behavior Support by Lisa Fox and Glen Dunlap from University of South Florida, Beyond Behavior, Vol. 11, Issue 2, pp. 24-26. This article discusses how the process of positive behavior support can be conducted in partnership with families. It describes the importance of family-centered positive behavior support and presents strategies for implementing the process as a family-professional partnership.